CHINA IS SEEKING INTERNAL PEACE

Movement Is Started to End
Dissensions Between Parties in North and South.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 28.—A definite move to bring about peace between the northern and southern factions in China was made this month when the Peking government appointed Yang Yung, a former minister of finance, to head a northern peace delegation to take up again with the southern representatives the negotiations that were broken off last spring. At that time the North rejected eight demands made by the South and so brought to an end the Shanghai peace conference.

The eight demands of the Canton government comprised the following:

Abrogate all secret treaties with Japan.
Punish the officials who negotiated the secret Japanese treaties.
Dismiss military and civil governors of provinces who had violated certain laws.

Disband the Northern defense army.
Decree the mandate of 1917 by which the old parliament—the body that removed to Canton and there set up the Southern government—was declared to be dissolved.
Recognize President Hsu Shih-chang only as provisional president.

What, if any, modifications the Canton government has expressed a willingness to make in its demands have not been clearly defined.

Late in August it was learned that private negotiations to withdraw troops had been in progress between military leaders of the North and South who apparently sought to hold a peace conference of their own at Nanking. Since the Peking government has appointed a new peace delegate, the opinion has been advanced that this military conference may not be held.

The great masses of people in China have scant concern with the strife which has been disrupting the country.

Whatever division might have existed between the masses of people in the North and the South, was swept away by announcement from Paris that the city of Tientsin and the rights formerly held by the Germans in the province of Shantung had been awarded to the Japanese. The whole country, North and South, saw that no action to avert the consequences of the Shantung decision could be taken with China divided against itself and this wave of popular sentiment grew into an important factor for the restoration of internal peace.

ALIEN ENEMIES SHOULD BE SENT BACK TO EUROPE

This Is Message of Governor to Law and Order Meet at Knoxville Where Thousands
Were Turned Away.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 28. (SPL.)—Denouncing anarchy, Gov. Roberts delivered a remarkable address at the East Tennessee conference on law and order here Tuesday afternoon. A great ovation was given him.

The board of commerce hall was unable to accommodate all who attended the conference, and the meeting was adjourned to Market hall, but even there hundreds were turned away.

"We now face the real crisis of the history of this republic," declared Gov. Roberts. "There but one issue in America today, and that is, 'Shall a free government live among men? Shall our nation have a government by the people, or shall this kind of a government perish from the face of the earth? That is the issue today that is so vital and momentous and personal that it seems as if every patriotic citizen of Tennessee, and every patriotic American, cannot doubt, halt nor hesitate as to which side he belongs on. That citizen who believes that the man who doubts is a dastard, and the man who doubts is damned. The time has come when we must deport all alien enemies. Those who cannot be deported must be dealt with severely."

Gov. Roberts then told of the first meeting of the Law and Order league which was held in Nashville about a week ago, saying that the men who were there had loved their state, loved their cities and their communities, and believed that their institutions were imperiled and that it was time that brave men stepped to the fore and took definite action in every city, hamlet and civil district in Tennessee.

"So a committee of fifteen men was selected, of whom your distinguished fellow citizen is a member. He has written a new chapter in the glorious history of our state, and has led his men on to victory."

"We are here today in response to the request of this committee," continued Gov. Roberts. "The committee said that it was the duty of its members to sound the alarm so that citizenship might be aroused and its patriotism rekindled so that they may take new hope and courage to do their duty in a trying situation. I said that I was ready and willing to meet with the people at any time and place, to counsel with them in regard to the real danger that is about us at this time."

At this point the meeting was adjourned to Market hall to accommodate the big crowd. When Gov. Roberts ascended the rostrum at Market hall he received an ovation that was even more prolonged and lusty than that which had greeted his initial remarks at the board of commerce.

"This magnificent demonstration of your loyalty and fealty to your flag touches me and fills me with pride to see representatives of East Tennessee taking such a deep, vital and personal interest in the one subject that now presents itself for solution," he continued.

For Law and Order.

"When the committee asked me to come to Knoxville to address a gathering of representatives of this law and order league from over East Tennessee, I again stated that I was ready to go to any place at any time where I felt that I could be of service to the people. In August, 1918, the world was again, Germany, hard, defiant, autocratic, had raised the mailed fist of despotism and defied free men everywhere. The challenge was picked up by every free government in the world. It was impossible for a great government to avoid being drawn into the conflict. It was a battle between autocracy and democracy, and the citizens of the world were called upon to choose between the two. Liberty and justice, civilization and even religion hung in the balance. It was inevitable that this country should take the leading part. Our draft law was then passed. This showed the unity of the government and the fact that rank is but the guinea's stamp and that a man is a man for a that."

"This ought to be an inspiration to all of us. Knowing that the boys fought for high principles, we should be willing to do the same for our constitution, for our flag, and for our principles. We are too prone not to look beneath the surface of things and to assume that they are all right. We should see the great causes underlying the world movements. We know that the cause of the war was that for four years the principles of the Bible have no place in government."

"It is high time for the citizens of Tennessee to take steps and ask what
